HUERTA FORCES ARE MOVING ON TORREON FOR A BITTER FIGHT

Will Make a Determined Stand There to Check Rebels.

LOSS MEANS FEDERAL DOWNFALL

Defeat Would Leave Path Virtually Unopposed to Mexico City Villa Concentrates His Troops for an Attack Which May End Dictatorship

By Associated Press

CHIHUAHUA, Mex., Jan. 21—Orders were issued by Francisco Villa today for a concentration of rebel forces along the railroad north of Torreon. The rebels scattered in the states of Durango and Coahuila and the garrison in Juarez will be ordered to join those in Jimulco and Santa Rosalia with a view of preparing for initiative front in the progressive advance southward.

Indications have multiplied that the federals at Torreon will make a determined stand there to check the rebels. The federals have massed their best troops and artillery in the north and have thrown up strong intrenchments. Should the federals be defeated there, the rebels would be left virtually unopposed to march on Mexico City.

Villa is now concentrating his troops at Chihuahua City, preparatory to moving them southward. Should the revolutionary movement be successful, it is most likely that Villa will then put Gen. Orozo in charge of the military operations against the federals in the north, while he himself will march on the capital. Villa is said to be in communication with Felipe Angeles, who is now in Mexico City, and it is believed that Angeles will be given an important command in the campaign against Huerta.

Villa has issued a proclamation to the people of Mexico, declaring that the revolutionists have no intention to overthrow the government of Mexico, and that they are fighting only against Huerta and his adherents. Villa declares that the revolutionists will support any government which may be established by the people.

Expected that Underwood Placed All Appropriation Bills Before House by June 1.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—Congressional leaders hope that by June 1 the Democratic Underwood tariff bill, the income tax measure, the currency bill and the annual appropriation bills will have been disposed of.

Plans to speed up legislation were discussed today at a conference between President Wilson, Democratic congressional leaders and Democratic members of the ways and means committee.

The conferees decided that the house should remain in session from 11 o'clock in the morning until 5 o'clock in the afternoon, with night sessions when necessary. It is believed that the house can dispose of the appropriation bills by the time mentioned.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Thickness and Luster at Once.

Common sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant, remove every bit of dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use tonic, costing about 50 cents a bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." This avoids a lot of muss.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time, by morning all gray hair has disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes wonderfully dark, soft and lustrous and you look years younger.—Adv.

PASTOR IS ILL.

Scottdale Minister Takes Rev. Wagner's Place at Services.

Owing to the illness of Rev. J. P. Wagner, the pastor, the first of the series of union services of the Methodist churches of Scottdale was conducted in the M. E. church on Sunday last by Rev. Dr. Bell, of Mount Pleasant. The subject of the sermon was "The Church and Its Mission." The pastor is reported as improving.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Husband of Connellsville and Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Miller of Scottdale left Wednesday for Atlantic City, where they will spend a week. The occasion of the trip is the celebration of the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. Husband, which will be observed on that date.

ALIEN SOLT MATTS BARRED.

Sweeping Decision Will Send Rich Man Away Forever.

NEW YORK, Jan. 21.—Aliens and natives who are prepared to make their home in the United States will be glad to learn that the immigration authorities have decided to enforce the law in such a way that only those who are actually destitute will be excluded. Under the new ruling, which was announced by Commissioner Williams, the rich alien who has been in the habit of coming to this country, spending his money and then returning to his native land will be barred. The decision was made by the circuit Court of Appeals.

The court holds that even if they come here for pleasure or temporary residence they are liable to deportation if they become public charges.

Chronic Indigestion Permanently Cured.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 21.—Chronic indigestion, which had caused me untold misery, and which I had tried many remedies for without relief, was entirely cured by Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. I have since recommended them to many friends, and they have always been successful in relieving the most severe cases of indigestion. For sale by all dealers.—Adv.

Surprise at Dickerson Run.

A surprise party was held at the home of [illegible] Dickerson Run Saturday evening in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. [illegible] Keck. The evening was spent in games and music. Mrs. Keck received a number of pretty presents.

Children Operated On.

Francis M. Husband, the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Husband of Pittsburg, and Anna Fern Byrd, nine years old, on Cunningham, were operated on for throat trouble this morning at the Cottage State Hospital.

DEATHS OF THE DAY

Mrs. Mary H. Luckey.

Mrs. Mary H. Luckey, 86 years old, died last night at the home of her son, J. M. Luckey, in Lower Tyrone township. About a week ago Mrs. Luckey contracted a severe cold, which with other complications, resulted in her death. Funeral from the Luckey residence tomorrow afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Services will be held at the Bryan Church at 2 o'clock. Rev. Ralph Bell, pastor of the Methodist Church at Vanderbilt, will officiate. Interment in Bryan cemetery.

Mrs. Luckey was the widow of Andrew Jackson Luckey who died about six years ago. She was born in Franklin township and before her marriage was Miss Mary H. Custer. She was the mother of five sons, four of whom survive: J. M. Luckey and J. C. Luckey, Lower Tyrone township; John Luckey, Connellsville, and David Luckey of Alaska. For the past two years she had made her home with her son, J. M. Luckey near Dawson. Mrs. Luckey was a member of the United Presbyterian Church and spent about 30 years of her life in Lower Tyrone township. The remainder was spent in Dunbar and Franklin township.

Mrs. Mary Snyder.

Mrs. Mary Snyder, one of the most widely known residents of Liberty, died this morning following a lingering illness. No arrangements have been made for the funeral. Among the surviving children are Mrs. William Bradley of Mrs. Myrtle Dewalt, Uniontown; Mrs. Maud Snyder, a teacher in the Greensburg schools; George Snyder, Kentucky; Frank Snyder, Liberty; Misses Margaret and Martha Snyder and Mrs. Emma Emery at home. Mrs. Flora Shultz of Scottdale.

Norman McLain.

Norman McLain, two months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William McLain of Dunbar, died Monday evening of pneumonia. Funeral services were held this afternoon Rev. T. M. Alsaden, pastor of the Methodist Protestant Church of Dunbar, officiating.

OFFICERS INSTALLED

Iroquois Members Hold a Big Meeting in Moose Hall.

At a largely attended meeting last night at the Moose Hall, Catawba Trail Lodge No. 29, the Order of Iroquois installed the following officers for the ensuing year:

Past president, C. H. McCormack; president, J. W. Cole; vice president, S. H. Cox; councilor, Harry Jennings; secretary, C. B. McCormack; collector, W. J. Hicks; treasurer, J. B. Marietta; prelate, E. P. Murphy; marshall, Charles Trimble; guard, P. J. Tormey; sentry, John Brown; trustees, George A. Clark, Harry Jennings and P. J. Tormey.

Supreme Deputy J. L. Thomas of Dawson was the installing officer. Other visiting members from Dawson attended. Following the meeting a supper was served at the Merchants cafe.

MOTHER! THE CHILD IS COSTIVE, BILIOUS.

Don't Hesitate! A Laxative is Necessary if Tongue is Coated, Breath Bad or Stomach Sour.

Give "California Syrup of Figs" at once—a teaspoonful today often saves a sick child tomorrow.

If your little one is out-of-sorts, half-sick, don't realize, eating and acting naturally look, Mother! see if tongue is coated. This is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and bowels are clogged with waste. When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or has stomach-ache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated poison, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of its little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

Mothers can rest easy after giving this harmless "fruit laxative," because it never fails to bring the little one's liver and bowels and sweeten the stomach and they always love its delicious taste. Full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups printed on each bottle.

Beware of counterfeits sold here. Ask your druggist for a 50 cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," then see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

Wages for Your Money.

The world we live in keeps increasing more and more the power of money over the affairs of men. If you have money to spare, opportunity comes to be sure that you obtain a certain portion of your income and not be merely earning wages. This Bank pays for the use of money and we cordially invite your deposits. The Citizens National Bank, 120 Pittsburg street, Connellsville, Pa.—Adv.

Senator Colton Dying.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.—While the condition of Senator Colton is improved, no hope is held out for his recovery, and according to the physicians the end is only a matter of time. At 2 o'clock the members of the family were told to be bedside as witness will have to be brought to the rapidly approaching end, but between 7 and 8 the patient took breakfast consisting of an egg, bacon and toast.

WHITE SLAVE PICTURES

Inside of the Traffic to be Shown at the Soisson.

The "Inside of the White Slave Traffic" will be presented at the Soisson Theatre for three days beginning tomorrow. These pictures were prepared under direction of the sociological research department of the Medical Review of Reviews. It was suppressed in New York by police, largely, it is said, because police corruption was shown. The case is still pending in the courts.

The pictures were shown at Uniontown. Although efforts were made to prevent them being displayed, Bishop R. S. McCrum gave them his unqualified endorsement. Rev. Charles W. Turner, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Uniontown also gave them the stamp of approval.

Referring to the pictures, Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., has written the producers of the film as follows:

"It struck me as being one of the most forceful and intelligent ways of presenting this terrible problem before the public and is handled in the most judicial manner. I went rather prejudiced against them and came away convinced of their usefulness. One does not have to be either broad minded or intelligent to grasp the importance of the great lesson which is to be for the benefit of both parent and child."

THAT TIRED FEELING

Suggests Grandmother's Remedy.

It is true, the season is here with its sudden changes, and the old idea that we need a blood medicine is not without reason. Too much heavy food for stomach, torpid liver, sluggish blood and a weak, tired out feeling.

Sulphur, cream of tartar and molasses was a grandmother's remedy but to-day has been displaced by Vinol, a combination of the two most world famed tonics, namely, the medical curative elements of the cod's liver, without oil, and iron for the blood.

Vinol builds up, makes you eat better and digest better, makes your blood rich and pure—puts healthy color in your cheeks.

N. S. Cliff of Opelika, Ala., says: "Your tonic Vinol has all run-down, no strength, no appetite. I took Vinol and soon got benefitted by its use. I recommend it strong and well as ever."

We guarantee Vinol to satisfy you or refund your money if it does not. Cochran & Company, Druggists, Connellsville. Vinol is sold on the West Side by Reed H. Hornberger.

P. S. For children's Eczema, Saxo Salve is guaranteed truly wonderful.

TWO MEN LOSE LEGS.

Injured in a Collision of Lurries at Mount Braddock Works.

Edward Beatty, 18 years old, and Clarence Kelly, 25 years old, both employed at the W. J. Rainey works at Mount Braddock, were victims of an accident about 6.30 this morning which resulted in each losing their right legs. A lurry collided with the one on which Kelly and Beatty were standing. Kelly also suffered a fractured clavicle.

The men were brought to Connellsville and removed to the Cottage State Hospital, where it was found the right legs of each were so badly mangled that amputation was necessary.

Outlaw Surrenders.

MAYVILLE, N. Y., Jan. 21.—Edward Beardsley, the Chautauqua county outlaw who for over a week has defied the posse of Sheriff Anderson, gave himself up to a party of newspaper men early today.

AH! BACKACHE GONE RUB PAIN, SORENESS AWAY IN A MOMENT

Limber Up! Rub Your Sore, Lame Back With Old-Time St. Jacobs Oil.

Back hurt you? Can't straighten up without feeling sudden pains, sharp aches and twinges? Now listen! That's lumbago, sciatica or maybe from a strain, and you'll get blessed relief the moment you rub your back with soothing, penetrating "St. Jacobs Oil." Nothing else takes out soreness, lameness and stiffness so quickly. You simply rub it on and out comes the pain. It is perfectly harmless and doesn't burn the skin.

Limber up! Don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle from any drug store, and after using it just once, you'll forget that you ever had backache, lumbago or sciatica, because your back will never hurt or cause any more misery. It never disappoints and has been recommended for 60 years.—Adv

OLD SORES, PILES, BURNS AND SCALDS HEAL VERY QUICKLY

Graham & Company, Connellsville, and S. A. Lowe & Company, Scottdale, sells an ointment called Sun Cura that surely does do anything it is advertised to for money back.

Thomas F. McCauley, Cooperstown, Pa., cut his finger; blood poison set in; arm swelled terribly; friends despaired said arm must come off. Sun Cura Ointment drew out water and cork put; arm saved; arm and hand soon as good as ever.

It quickly draws out poison from sores, fever sores, ulcers, boils, carbuncles, cuts, burns, scalds and bruises.

For itching, bleeding or protruding piles, it has received the highest indorsement, while innumerable cases are recorded where eczema, tetter and salt rheum were cured in the shortest possible time. Sun Cura Ointment is 25 and 50 cents a jar.

Everybody should use Sun Cura Soap, it's antiseptic, prevents contagion, keeps the skin clear, soft and velvety. 25 cents. Thompson Medical Co., Titusville, Pa.—Adv.

MEETINGS WELL ATTENDED.

Fine Audiences at the Union Evangelistic Services.

Fine audiences are present each evening at the union services of the Methodist Episcopal and Presbyterian congregations in the Methodist Episcopal Church. It is expected that by tonight the church will be crowded to its capacity. An excellent chorus choir of from 40 to 50 voices has been organized and has caused much favorable comment.

The stirring songs that are sung are from the book used in the "Billy" Sunday meetings in Pittsburg. The pastors of the two churches alternate in preaching. A meeting for women was held this afternoon at 3 o'clock and another will be held on Wednesday of next week.

TAKES POISON BY MISTAKE.

School Girl Dies from What She Thought Were Headache Tablets.

Miss Margaret Knight, 14 years old, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Knight of Lemont, mistaking cyanide of mercury tablets for headache powders, swallowed the poison on her return from school yesterday afternoon, death resulting two hours afterwards. The poison had been used by another member of the family as an ear wash.

Dr. W. F. Means of Perry, and Dr. J. F. Detwiler of Uniontown were summoned and every effort possible was made to save the girl's life. Miss Knight is survived by her parents, a brother, James, and a sister, Helen.

FASHION'S LATEST.

Today's drawing shows one of the prettiest of little visor caps. The teaching little chapeau is made of mole-colored taffeta. The visor which shadows the face is faced with wood brown taffeta and wired on the outer edge. It joins the crown with a self piping of taffeta. Through a fancy buckle on either side of the crown and back of the crown and back of the visor a brown satin ribbon is passed across the crown continuing under the chin to a snug strap. The comfort alone, of this fashion aside from its coquettish becoming attributes should insure its adoption. Exit Cabbage hat pin!

OVER 6,000 SATISFIED SPECTACLE WEARERS IN FAYETTE COUNTY—MY RECORD IN LESS THAN THREE YEARS' TIME

DR. M. B. BURSTAN,
MUNSON BUILDING
108 W. MAIN ST.—SECOND FLOOR.

I Thank You

People of Connellsville and vicinity for the courtesy you have shown me and the support you have given me in my work. It is now one month since my return to your city and at that time I have rendered my services to many hundreds of people and in appreciation of the big business I have done have decided to continue my SPECIAL OFFER OF "STEVENS" S. Q." GOLD FILLED EYEGLASSES FOR $4.00 for the balance of this week. Bifocal and Special Lenses at less than half price.

After this week my regular fees will prevail that my regular fees are just half what others actually charge. Remember I guarantee satisfaction or money refunded if I accept your case. My examinations are scientific. I use the X-Ray and all the latest scientific instruments.

Headaches and nervousness and other troubles far remote from the eye are oftimes the direct result of eye strain and the proper glasses would give immediate relief. It is necessary for the eye to be sore to indicate the need of glasses. In many cases the eye may be perfectly healthy and glasses may be needed for the reasons which are only apparent to the skilled refractionist.

EXAMINATION FREE

During this wonderful offer I will be in charge and every patient will get scientific examination and glasses properly adjusted. REMEMBER I am making this offer to build up my business and cannot afford to exaggerate. Special prices during offer on specially ground lenses, Bifocals and Tories.

For balance of week only "Stevens S. Q." Gold filled Eyeglass Mountings—every pair guaranteed by the makers—fitted with my own lenses—including examination, $4.00.

All "Stevens" frames and mountings are stamped on the bridge—"Stevens S. Q."—look for it—don't take my word. They are gold filled—not gold plated—permanently guaranteed by Stevens & Company, Inc., of Providence, R. I., and myself—and will be replaced at any time it they fail to give satisfaction.

Caution about the Use and Selection of Spectacles

Persons having normal vision will be able to read the print at a distance of 14 inches from the eyes with ease and comfort; also will be able to read it with each eye separately. If unable to do so your eyes are defective and should have immediate attention. When the eyes become tired from reading or sewing or if the letters look blurred and run together or if a sore indication that glasses are needed. The lenses used in the cheap spectacles of commerce depends and have unscientifically formed surfaces. A natural use of these poor lenses will result in permanent injury from the constant strain upon the muscles of accommodation to supply the defection in the glass.

$50 REWARD

I have no agents and will pay the above reward for the arrest and conviction of persons claiming to be me or my representatives.

IS IT YOUR KIDNEYS?

Don't Mistake the Cause of Your Troubles.

Many people never suspect their aching backs are the cause of their many troubles. It's folly to keep on treating symptoms when the cause remains. Backache often leads to dropsy or Bright's disease. Almost every woman has backache at times. Don't neglect it. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Doan's have helped thousands. Here's a Connellsville case to prove their merit.

Mrs J Dunn, 10 Seventh Ave, Connellsville, Pa., says: "I suffered from backache and kidney trouble for a long time. I had dizzy spells and my eyesight was affected. Doctors' medicines did me no good. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills and they soon relieved me of all my troubles. I have since recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to many friends and they have always given satisfaction."

$3.50 Recipe Free, For Weak Men

Send Name and Address Today, You Can Have It Free and Be Strong and Vigorous

We have in our possession a prescription for nervous debility, lack of vigor, weakened manhood, failing memory and lame back, brought on by excesses, unnatural drains or the follies of youth, that has cured so many worn and nervous men right in their own homes, without any additional help or medicine—that we think every man who wishes to regain his manly power, virility quickly and quietly, should have a copy. So we have determined to send a copy of the prescription free of charge, in a plain, ordinary sealed envelope to any man who will write us for it.

This prescription comes from a physician who has made a specialty of men and we are convinced it is the surest acting combination for the cure of debility, manhood and vigor failure ever put together.

We think we owe it to our fellow man to send them a copy. In confidence so that any man anywhere who is weak and discouraged with repeated failures may stop drugging himself with harmful patent medicines, secure what we believe is the quickest acting restorative ever sold, SPEE-TOU-HING, cancels every cloud, and so cure himself at home, quickly and quickly. Just drop us a line like this: Interstate Remedy Co, 7100 Dix Bldg, Detroit, Mich, and we will send you a copy of this splendid recipe in a plain, ordinary envelope free of charge. A good many doctors would charge $10 to $25.00 for merely writing out a prescription like this—but we will send it entirely free.—Adv

MEYERSDALE.

MEYERSDALE Jan 21—The local Broadway A C basketball team last evening added another victory to its ever increasing number by defeating the St Johns team at Prostburg, Md, by the score of 32 to 18. The Broadway boys now occupy first place for the race for the Western Maryland League pennant having forced Lonaconing to retire to second place. Tonight "Coney" will have a chance to even things up a bit as they will meet the locals here on the Auditorium floor. They are coming with hundreds of rooters and a brass band for the purpose of winning the game, which they seem sure they will do but people who have watched the games thus far this season are just not inclined to the belief that the boys from the creek will hang up against a tough proposition tonight.

DRY ECZEMA ON LEGS AND BODY

Broke Out With Pimples. Itched and Burned. Cross at Night and Could Not Rest. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Permanently Cured. Troubled No More.

31 North Rock St., Shamokin, Pa.—"My baby started with dry eczema on his legs and body keeping him awake half the night with itching and burning. The eczema broke out with pimples just red and large which itched and burned. If he scratched it became very sore, and if not it would become dry and peel off. He was very cross with it, especially at night and he could not rest.

"I tried four different remedies, ——, —— and two other ointments without success. I heard Cuticura Soap and Ointment were good so I got a sample which I used at once. The baby seemed very much relieved and I then got a large box of Cuticura Ointment and with it a cake of Cuticura Soap. I applied the Cuticura Ointment three times a day, washing the first application off with the Cuticura Soap before applying the new. I used the Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment before he was permanently cured. Now he is troubled with it no more." (Signed) Mrs. R. H. Kinney, Mar. 14, 1913

For treating poor complexions, red rough hands and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have been the world's favorites for more than a generation. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free with 32-p Skin Book. Address post-card "Cuticura, Dept T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

CONGRESSMAN BOLTS

A. L. Kelster One of Those Not Anxious to See Gun Play

Dispatches from Washington state that Congressman A. L. Kelster of Scottdale was one of the several men in the committee room of the House yesterday when Representative Johnson of Kentucky and Attorney J. R. Shields had their clash.

According to newspaper men, Mr Kelster advised the others to make their getaway when Johnson started for his "artillery," and led the retreat. Fortunately there was no shooting.

This fine, old-fashioned remedy has been healing sores of all kinds of colds from a sneeze to chronic catarrh. Sniff a little up the nose—you will feel like a new creature. It loosens the passages, has a soothing, sanitary, healing effect, and is guaranteed harmless—fair and 25c tubes. At druggists' or write for free sample.

WEDNESDAY EVE'G, JAN. 21, 1914

TRUST REGULATION.

President Wilson's message of "business peace and industrial freedom" evidently comes from a leader who perceives that he and his party have done a great deal of mischief to common prosperity and that it is their imperative duty to try to build up that which is torn down.

While the message deals with Trusts and their regulation its keynote is reasonable and equitable regulation. While he would empower the Interstate Commerce Commission to supervise and control the financial as well as the physical operation of the railroads he reminds Congress that "the prosperity of the railroads and the prosperity of the country are inseparably connected." In Democratic circles and elsewhere this important proposition seems to have been much overlooked. The Courier long ago recognized it and referred to it but in the din and clamor of the vociferating mob a single cry reached few ears and perhaps fewer understandings. The Man Higher Up will get a larger hearing. The mighty truth will prevail.

President Wilson's previous messages have been remarkable for their several chapters but this have been popular for their remarkable brevity and remarkable for the fact that they have all been personally delivered. By a plan of recommendations the President has avoided clashing with Congress on details and in a large measure has left upon the shoulders of the legislative body the responsibility for the laws formulated in compliance with his demands. In his message on Trusts however, he is more specific. He has some definite ideas which he desires to impress upon Congress. If these suggestions are followed out the message will be seen to be chief characteristic for it otherwise. Good sense to the Country, for Congress won't.

The President urges that all reasonable doubt should be legislated out of the Sherman law. He would have a specific definition of the many hurtful restraints of trade. He also suggests the creation of an Interstate Trade Commission which shall act as a clearing house of information in helping business to conform with the law.

The ideas are excellent but somewhat vague. It does not appear that the proposed Interstate Trade Commission will have any real power and in the absence of authority its advice would be valuable only in proportion to its possible wisdom. Unless such advice has the merit of being entirely free it will not be popular.

The remainder of the message deals with matters which seem to be adjusting themselves such as the elimination of interlocking directorates and holding companies.

The most valuable portion of the message is its general tone toward business. Its evident desire to smooth the wrinkled front of perplexed commercialism is unconcealed concern in the work of removing all obstacles in the way of business, its great anxiety to facilitate the return of that prosperity which has persistently shrunk in unison with Democratic policies.

THE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The City Council proposes to create a new Board of Health consisting of seven members one for each ward the members to be women instead of physicians as heretofore.

The reason given for desiring to change the complexion of the board is that professional courtesy has prevented the old board from taking action against physicians who defy the regulations and his reasoning seems to be well founded. Besides, there is no reason why a majority of the board should be physicians any more than that they should be undertakers. The board should be composed of intelligent men who are willing to give a reasonable portion of their time to the duties of the office and who will select subordinate officers for their merits rather than their political influence or their pull, and who will enforce the health ordinances without fear or favor.

Nor is it necessary or desirable that the board consist of seven members. Ward representation no longer exists in Connellsville. We are no longer a borough. We are living under a new city code which has eliminated the wards so far as representative government is concerned. The City Council consists of but five members including the mayor and it represents the whole city. The new Board of Health should be modeled on the same line. We would suggest that it consist of but three members selected for their ability and willingness to serve, rather than seven chosen because of a notion that each ward should be represented and separately watched by a single member.

If there is more efficiency in a Council of Five there is more efficiency in a Board of Three. If the City Council believes in itself it must believe in extending the idea under which it was created.

MADER'S PLEA.

Mike Mader, sentenced to death in Somerset county for the killing of Steve Dudla at Boswell, last summer, made the plea that he shot the wrong man, and he could not understand why that was not a sufficient excuse. The killing from his point of view, was an accident. He didn't intend to kill Dudla but some other man.

The law justly holds Mader to be guilty of murder. By his own statement he intended to take human life. That his victim happened to be the wrong man does not lessen the enormity of his offense. He went forth to slay and he slew. He must pay the penalty.

Senator Clapp, one of the modern Moseses who are to lead the nation to the land of milk and honey, thinks there must be something wrong with a party when many of its members only confess to belong to it through a hyphenated connection, such as Progressive-Republican or Progressive-Democrat, instead of saying simply and boldly "I am a Republican," or "I am a Democrat." The Senator is wrong. There is nothing the matter with the political parties mentioned; the trouble is with the individuals. Most of them, fortunately, have recovered.

The country is full of Democratic prosperity and idle men.

Over in Washington county the court has established a new rule of evidence in hearing divorce cases. When the complainant alleges that his wife has "treated him like a dog," he will be obliged to prove the dog.

A parole is freedom with a string to it, still it's better than barred windows and closed doors.

The Chamber of Commerce is thinking that noon train from Connellsville to Pittsburg, Young Blood is a good runner.

Secretary Redfield is investigating the pottery business with a view to ascertaining whether it needs a protective tariff. The Democratic administration's Tariff policy is like that winged western justice which hangs the accused and tries him afterwards.

Kentucky Congressmen are too prone to argue with fists or firearms.

The high cost of corporate living is shown in recent damage suits in the Fayette county courts. Where formerly damages in suits of from $5,000 to $10,000 were commonly claimed the claims are now from $20,000 to $30,000.

Huerta's finances will be his finish.

We note that two deputy stamp collectors were appointed at Greensburg by Internal Revenue Collector Lewellyn. Why not one at Connellsville? The Government has provided $4c office in the Postoffice Building.

The Western Maryland's Connellsville division is a fresh-from-the-mill bit of track but it holds up well. The Western Maryland has had much less trouble with slides and wrecks than befell the Pittsburg & Connellsville when it built its line on the other side of the river. Perhaps the last choice of location was the best.

Another extensive earthquake is reported in Japan. It's no wonder the little brown men are hunting locations in other countries.

The Democratic House is quite as completely under the rule of caucus as the Republican Houses under Reed and Cannon ever dared be. The Democratic war against Uncle Joe was after all a vain pretense just like most other Democratic Reforms.

A regular army officer says the militia organizations are top-heavy and inefficient. The militia organization of Pennsylvania is modeled after that of the regular army. It's regular, it ought to be right.

The Lake Erie railroad is taking advantage of the sober times to insure sober men in its employment.

Some stockholders are getting in a frame of mind when they will welcome government ownership of railroads.

The law forbidding aliens to carry firearms in Pennsylvania has been affirmed by the Supreme Court of the United States, but it will be dealed and disregarded just as freely as ever by the reckless alien element.

The road to success is not down hill.

"Moulting Time" In the Stores

January is the season when the stores go through the process of clearing stock—a natural and healthy business transaction.

They plan to get out all the Winter merchandise they can and get ready for Spring.

Believing in the adage that "Trade follows the price," they act accordingly. What the advertising in this season of the year may lack in literary quality it more than makes up in pocketbook appeal.

Glance through the advertising in today's COURIER and you will see the passing of the seasons.

The new goods are knocking at the doors and you will find the whispers of Spring creeping in with the passing of Winter.

As they "take stocks" most of the merchants are making their business plans for 1914. If you asked them what the most important part of these next years plans were, they would tell you "Provision for advertising in the newspapers."

The Purpose of an Advertisement

Is to serve your needs. It will help sell your goods—talk to the people you want to reach. An advertisement in this paper is a reference guide to those whose wants are worth supplying.

You May Talk to One Man

But an advertisement in this paper talks to the whole community.

LILY LANGTRY TONIGHT.

The famous English actress, Lily Langtry will appear in the 4 reel society play, "His Neighbor's Wife," at the Soisson Theatre tonight. There is also a 3-reel drama, "Case of Cherry Purcell." Prices 5c and 10c. THE INSIDE OF THE WHITE SLAVE TRAFFIC.

The following letter was written to Mr. Frederick H. Robinson, president of the Medical Review of Reviews by Mr. Norman Hapgood, editor of Harper's Weekly

Dear Mr. Robinson:

I saw the picture play, "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic," at the Bijou today, and they told me it was the same as the film at the Park Theatre, and I was struck with amazement, as I usually am, at the particular performances which the agitators and the police usually select to make trouble about. In "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic," there is nothing which is not forbidding, sombre and wholesome. The only thing ever objected to seems to be the simple unvarnished truth. Prostitution is one of the greatest evils in the world, and it won't be lessened without a change in the whole thought of the community. It will not be routed until men think of women generally as their sisters. The attempt to suppress such an exhibition as "The Inside of the White Slave Traffic" can only be explained as a singular example of conservation at its stupidest

Yours Truly,
Norman Hapgood

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have.

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming the form Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, you will know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, constant headaches, a listless feeling as if to live, all out of sorts and have bowels constipated, use Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets right for a time and note the pleasing result.

Thousands of women and children, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep on the pink of condition.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets the most wonderful constitutional regulator and liver and bowel tonic. The price 15 and 25 per box. The Olive Tablet Co., Columbus, O. All druggists sell. Adv

Light Touch Monarch

On the average typewriter the touch is an incidental thing. On the Monarch it is THE fundamental thing. The machine is literally built around the touch. The long levers, the creeping fulcrum, the straight line pull—all of these are factors in the Light Touch for which the Monarch is famous.

Consider what this Light Touch means. Fifty-two thousand separate key strokes constitute the day's work of the average typist. A saving of time and strength on every one of those strokes is bound to mean a bigger day's work every day in the year.

BROADWAY JONES

FROM THE PLAY OF GEORGE M. COHAN

BY EDWARD MARSHALL

WITH PHOTOGRAPHS FROM SCENES IN THE PLAY

'Say, come here. Where do you live when you're not here?'

"In Harlem, sir.'

'Got a flat?'

'Yes, sir.'

'Like this furniture?' He waved his hand at the extremely ornate contents of the room.

'Beautiful, sir.'

"It's yours.'

'Oh, thank you, sir! Anything else?'

'No. what else do you want? Get out! Don't bother me. I'm a busy man.'

He hurried to the telephone, laughing very earnestly, as if he really liked to laugh.

'Give me long-distance, please. Hello, long-distance, hello, long-distance. I want to talk to Jonesville, Conn. Jonesville. J—o— there you are. Got it right. Judge Spotswood, attorney at law, Jonesville, Conn. Yes, this is 2468 Huyler. Rush it, won't you? Thanks!'

As he sat and contemplated with a smile of great intensity the tips of his slim patent leather shoes Wallace, having done his task, returned to him with a grave face.

Well,' said he, almost discouraged, 'I've figured it all up, and the best that I can do makes the grand total sixty-one thousand four hundred and eighty two dollars.'

'How much?'

'Sixty-one thousand four hundred and eighty two dollars.'

'Spending money, my boy,' said Broadway grandly. 'Spending money.'

With that he sprang out of his chair and rushed about the room with joy upon his face and showed his deep contempt for little things by breaking several costly vases, throwing six American Beauty roses in the waste basket and tossing cushions here and there. One of an especial elegance he threw out on Broadway, never looking to see whose head it softly lighted upon.

'What's the matter with you?' demanded Wallace. 'Going crazy all over again?'

Broadway paused in his extraordinary program. 'Do you know what I'm going to do from now on? I'm going to make the loudest noise Broadway has heard since Dewey came home from the war.'

'What are you talking about?' Jackson looked him kindly in the eye.

'Know what happened after you had left the room? A messenger boy with golden wings and a jeweled harp flew through that window handed me a telegram, and flew right back to—to—well, somewhere.' He thrust the telegram at Wallace. 'Read, read, read!'

The latter Wallace read aloud. The reader paused. 'God!' he exclaimed.

'Did he sign it?' Broadway begged with [illegible] gibberish.

'It's signed Judge Spotswood. Who's he?'

'My uncle's lawyer.'

'Is this a joke?'

'If it is I'll make a reputation as a joke man.'

'Why, this is the most wonderful thing that ever happened!'

'It's all of that, and more. Do you know what I'm going to do? I'm going to buy Brooklyn—and close it up.'

But Wallace was not swept away by his extravagance. He really was a business man. 'Pembroke,' he reflected. When he phoned I took his message.'

'He was here. Say, did you ever hear of the Consolidated Chewing Gum company?'

'Why certainly. They're the biggest advertisers in America.'

'Well, he's second vice-president. He's coming back at two o'clock.'

'What for?'

'To bring me a check for twelve hundred and fifty thousand dollars! I'm going to sell him Jones' Pepsin.'

Instantly the business man was uppermost in Wallace. He became alert, suspicious. 'He made that offer?'

'Yes.'

'And you accepted?'

'Yes.'

'Sign an agreement?'

'Not yet.'

Wallace spoke now, with the firmness of a heavy hammer striking on an anvil. 'Well, you're not going to.'

Broadway gazed at him aghast. 'Why?'

'Now don't give me any argument. You've been a damn fool all your life and here's a chance to get even with yourself.'

'Turn down a million two hundred thousand dollars?'

'Yes.'

Broadway shook his head. 'Not on [illegible] telegraphy.'

'I was not impressed. 'What if I'm a keeper, and I'm going to [illegible]

[illegible] telephone rang and as Broadway would have answered it, Wallace [illegible] away. It was [illegible] he had definitely assumed [illegible]

[illegible] would be worth [illegible] explained that he had raised the [illegible] and wished him to come at once to New York city. Wallace gave him one sad glance of pure disgust. Then he told the judge exactly other wise.

'No,' he called into the phone. 'No, no, don't you come here. We'll come there.'

Broadway was instantly rebellious. 'I'll do nothing of the kind.'

Wallace waved him off with a condemnatory hand, and continued talking to the telephone. 'We'll be there at six o'clock. In time for dinner. Yes, good-by.' He hung up the receiver and turned to Broadway with the hard but happy smile of the real business man who has succeeded in accomplishing a coup.

'Say, what are you trying to do?' said Broadway, not without resentment. 'Run my affairs for me?'

'Yes,' said Wallace readily, and then called loudly for the butler. When he came he told him to pack, without delay, a grip for Mr. Jones, who he gravely announced, was going traveling.

'To—er—Japan?' inquired the hopeful Rankin.

'Same thing. Connecticut.'

'Look here,' said Broadway wrathfully, 'I don't intend—'

The bell rang.

'To see who that is,' said Wallace in a most peremptory tone.

'Say, I'm not working for you, am I?' asked Broadway peevishly.

'Go on, do as you are told.'

'Well, I'll be damned,' said Broadway, but started toward the door.

Wallace, though, was thinking. 'Wait! Hold on. It may be Mrs. Gerard. Didn't she say she would be back in half an hour?'

Broadway paused, dismayed. 'That's so.' He hurried to the window, and looked out; he turned back with a worried face. 'Surest thing you know. It's her car all right.'

'Get your hat,' said Wallace. 'Is there another way out of this house?'

'The servants' elevator at the back.'

'Rankin! Oh, Rankin!'

Rankin, breathless, hurried in. 'I'll have the grip packed in five minutes, sir.'

'Never mind the grip. We can't wait for it. We've got to make a train. See who's at the door. We're going out the other way.' He seized Broadway's wrist. 'Come on!'

Jackson departing in a somewhat sideways fashion, owing to the steady pull of Wallace's strong arm, called back to Rankin. 'Oh, there'll be a party of gentlemen here at two o'clock to see me, and—'

'What shall I tell them, sir?'

Wallace answered: 'Tell them to go to hell,' said he.

"We've Got to Make a Train."

CHAPTER VII.

Jonesville was in mourning. Broadway's departed uncle had inspired not much affection; he had not been one to care to; but for many years, to the workers in the factory, he had been a sort of business deity—the semi-providential head of the great enterprise through which they gained their livelihood.

The folk of Jonesville had neither loved him nor revered him, he had been a sort of elemental necessity to their peace of mind, they had, so to speak, leaned with a feeling of security upon his stubbornness, knowing he would never sell out to the gum trust, if he did not sell out to the gum trust the factory would operate, if the factory kept running Jonesville would continue to eat, drink, and, in its crude, undeveloped way, be merry. Now that he was dead, a feeling of uncertainty shroud a mild panic through the little town.

The judge was waiting for the two men in the hotel corridor. His worry over what the new owner of the factory might decide to do about the perfect [illegible] well known trust plans was quite as keen as anyone's, but his dignity forbade that he should make display of it.

[illegible] was something of a [illegible] hurried [illegible] and held out his hand, although the boy's appearance was a shock to him. He remembered him as Higgins' mother had described him and as the dapper, bovish youth who had aroused the wonder of the town with patent leather shoes and new dance steps. This [illegible] extremely urban man young [illegible] naturally, with a face which told [illegible] and tales of night [illegible] such as were not written upon any face in Jonesville, no matter what its age, nonplussed and confused him. He had expected normal changes, he saw metamorphosis.

'Judge,' said Wallace, who, although a stranger, was first to grasp his hand, 'I'm glad to see you.' There was a harnassed look upon his face as if he might have had a difficult time with Broadway on the train.

The judge took Broadway's hand. 'And this is little Jackson' Broadway, we used to call you. Well, I'm glad to see you!'

'Thanks, judge.' Broadway really was glad, and shook hands heartily, although the sybarite in him already was in strong revolt against the old hotel.

'I'll go in and register, Broadway,' said Wallace. 'And I'll put you down as Mr. Jackson. No use in—'

'Yes,' said the judge approvingly, 'the town is all upset. There might be—er—'

'I understand.'

'If it should get around that the old mill would be sold to the trust.'

The desk was near the door which led into the fly-specked corridor and the judge was listening as Wallace made terms with the clerk.

'What'll you take now, Mr. Wallace?' said the clerk, after careful study of the signature upon the register. 'Or are you Mr. Jackson?'

'No, Wallace. I'm Mr. Jackson's secretary. And we'd like two rooms with—'

'Two!' said the clerk, astonished. That was such extravagance as never had before occurred in that hotel.

'Yes, two connecting rooms, with a bath between, if possible.'

The clerk gazed, open-mouthed. 'Well, now,' he explained, 'I don't guess I can do that. We got a bath room. Years ago a barber leased the shop and had it put in next to it. Thought he'd rent it out to strangers. But he didn't. It's still there, but lord, he's dead, and I guess th' lead pipe has been used som'ers else. Know it has, in fact.'

'Well—'

'Lead pipe, ye know, is val'able.'

'Is it? Well, do the best you can for us. Telephones in the rooms, are there?'

'In the rooms? No. They's one across the street at th' liv'ry stable.'

'Well, we'll have to make that do, then. Can we get some dinner?'

'Dinner's over't two o'clock. Supper's over now. Might fix up somethin', I suppose.'

'All right, do the best you can for us and send it to the rooms.'

'What? Send it to the rooms! Wan I should come along to feed ye?' The clerk was definitely angry. These city folks!

The judge stepped in. 'I want you and Mr—er—er—Mr. Jackson should come to my house for your supper,' he suggested.

'We'd better not, tonight, judge. To morrow, possibly.'

Broadway cast at Wallace a pathetic glance. 'Could it be possible that he meant to stay in Jonesville till tomorrow night?' Wallace sent him a look of warning.

'Well, if we can't have supper in our rooms, I suppose we'll take it where we can,' he granted, determined that if Broadway really came back to Jonesville as he intended to compromise him to some changes should be made in the hotel.

'Minnie!' shouted the clerk, in a reverberating voice, calculated to express itself though miles might intervene. 'Two supp-p-er-s!'

'All right,' he said to Wallace. 'Want to wash? Wash basins—'

'We'll do that, anyway, up in our rooms.'

'What with?' exclaimed the clerk triumphantly. 'They ain't no water there.'

'But couldn't—'

'Ain't no water,' said the clerk indifferently, grandly, 'ner no soap, ner towels, ner pitchers, ner no bowls ner nothin'.' He turned away.

'But where's the key?'

'Ain't no key. We're honest folks in Jonesville. I'm goin' out.'

'But where are the rooms?'

'Head th' stairs. One and two. They ain't no others.' With no further words he went his way.

'My God, Bob,' said Broadway, approaching him appealingly, 'you're not going to make me live here, are you?'

'Yes; but I'm going to build a new hotel here,' Wallace answered.

The judge hovered close to Broadway. 'I wish you'd come up to the house to supper.'

'Not tonight, judge, thanks.'

'No,' he granted sympathetically, 'I suppose you want a rest. Tired after four hours on the train, of course. Gad, it's quite a journey! How've you been, Broadway?' The judge pronounced it 'bean,' as if it came in pods.

'Oh, so, so, judge.'

'Busy, I suppose, down to New York—'

'Yes; busy every minute—night and day.'

'Uh-huh, I s'pose so. What did you say the business was you've been following?'

Wallace answered before Broadway had a chance. 'Liquor business, principally,' he said tersely.

Broadway's eyes flashed toward him a lightning glance of sheer malevolence, which his caught without a sign of anything but high amusement. 'Yes—er—judge,' said Broadway, 'I have invested quite a lot of money in the liquor business.'

'Well,' said the cautious judge, anxious not to hurt his feelings, and, in his heart not shocked, 'somebody's got to sell it. And I suppose it was the whole the business you were in. That's always thought respectable.'

'You bet it was the wholesale business,' Wallace broke in cheerily.

Broadway began to feel intense distaste for the alertness of successful business men. They took a fellow up and make a monkey of him before he had a chance to think. This whole trip to Jonesville—

'Judge,' said the energetic advertising agent, 'maybe you would like a little nip.'

'My boy,' the judge replied in mournful tones, 'you can't get it here at this hotel. It ain't been to be had here since the Episcopalian that once owned it was bought out by a Methodist.'

'I've—' Broadway began.

'I've got some in my pocket,' said Wallace, interrupting.

'Now, Bob—' Broadway began to protest, but the judge himself did not permit him to complete his sentence.

'I could show you to your room,' he said, 'being as the clerk's gone out.'

'By all means. We—'

'Er no,' the judge said sadly. 'Twouldn't really do. My wife—'

Jackson was looking round him for his bag. Rankin always— Suddenly he remembered that he did not have his bag. They had fled without it as they dodged Mrs. Gerard. He gnashed his teeth at Wallace.

But, even though the liquor question was in no way settled at the session, the judge stayed a little while to gossip, principally making inquiries about the story which had been prominently printed in the local papers that Broadway was to marry a rich widow.

Wallace took command here, too, with lightning-like celerity. 'Judge,' said he with gravity, 'if every widow in New York who has confided to the newspapers that she would like to marry Mr. Jones had married him he'd be a modern Mormon.'

'Yes, I suppose so—with the prospects of this business here in Jonesville and a big wholesale liquor business of his own there in the city. I bet they have been after him. But I must go. You'll be up after supper?'

'Very soon, if supper's what I think it will be,' Broadway answered.

Mrs. Spotswood was consumed with curiosity when her husband arrived at home.

'Why didn't you bring him here to supper?' she inquired.

'Well, mother, you know they've been on a railroad train four hours. I guess they're pretty tired. They'll get supper at the hotel.' He laughed. 'Mr. Wallace, he's with Broadway, asked to have it served up in their rooms and Gilroy, the hotel clerk, asked him if they wanted he should feed it to them.' His laughter became violent. 'You know Gilroy's very witty.'

'How does Broadway look?'

'Ten years older. My, how that boy has changed!'

'My goodness, what a curiosity he'll be to the folks here! Did you tell him we had read in the New York Herald about his going to get married?'

'Yes, I asked him about that.'

'What did he say?'

'Well, he started to say something [illegible]

"It Doesn't Seem Possible It's You."

but his friend broke in and told me not to believe everything I read in the New York papers. Broadway didn't have much to say. His friend did most of the talking.'

'Who is he?'

'Name's Wallace. He seems to be a right nice chap. Wide awake, all right. I tried to pump him about what Broadway means to do with the gum plant, but he didn't seem inclined to talk about it, so I dropped it. I'm worried about the matter, mom.'

She sighed. 'I guess everyone in town is. Would the trust close the plant if they should buy it?'

'Why, of course. They don't care for those old shacks and their machinery. What they're after is the formula and trade-mark. They do their manufacturing out in Ohio. Where's Clara?'

'I'll have Sammy find her. He'll be through supper in a quarter of an hour.'

But Sammy entered at the moment. 'I want you to go find Clara and tell her to come home. I think she's at Josie Richards'.'

Clara bounded in immediately. Sam had found her in the hammock. She had developed wonderfully since the days when Broadway had taught her new dance steps in the old power house.

'Sam said you wanted something, pa.'

'Yes, I want you to be here this evening. And now won't you run over to Josie Richards' house and tell her I want to see her tonight about something very important?'

'You want to see her here?'

'Yes. Tell her it's something about the plant. Did your mother tell you who's in town?'

'No. Who?'

'The new o[illegible] The [illegible] man himself. Remember him? He's been away five years.'

'Remember him! When did he get here?'

"On the five-fifty. Don't tell it to anyone but Josie, and tell her to keep it quiet. He doesn't want anybody to know it.'

Clara nodded, but her face was flushed. 'I understand, pa. Shall I tell her that he'll be here at the house?'

'Yes; and tell her he'll likely want to know all about how things stand.'

'I'll hurry.' She started rapidly away, but a footstep on the creaking porch outside arrested her. She paused in an intense excitement.

'I guess that's him now,' her father exclaimed listening intently.

'I'll let him in, pa.'

Half elated and half frightened, she hurried to the little entrance hall and opened the front door. A whiff of cigarette smoke, very different from any which the Jonesville boys emitted, caressed her nostrils as the door swung open, and in the soft gleam of the evening she saw two waiting figures.

'Is Judge Spotswood at home?' asked one of them.

'Yes, sir, he's waiting for you. Don't you recognize me, Mr. Jones?'

Broadway stepped with her into the lighted entry. 'Why,' he said, astonished, as he looked at her developing beauty, 'you're not Clara, are you?'

She could feel the admiration in his tone, rather than see it on his face, for she could not help. 'Of course I am.'

'Well, what do you think of that! You're—very different—why, you were a little girl last time I saw you!' He pulled Wallace forward by the arm. 'This is my friend, Mr. Wallace. Bob this is the judge's daughter, Miss Spotswood.'

Now, she could see her old friend's friend more clearly. Instantly she decided that he was the handsomest of living men. She had been genuinely glad to see Broadway. Now, immediately, she forgot that he existed.

'I'm going to get Josie,' she exclaimed and fled into the night.

'By heck, Broadway,' Wallace commented. 'There's a pretty country girl! I didn't know they did it in such detail in the rural districts.'

The judge came to them with a hearty handclasp. 'Welcome to this house again, my boy,' said he. 'It's been a long time since you have seen this room. Not changed much, eh? We don't change much in Jonesville.' He waved his hand toward Mrs. Spotswood, who was sitting in a flutter of expectancy, but would not rise because it seemed more elegant to remain seated. 'Remember that lady?'

Broadway hurried toward her. 'I should say I do! Hello, Mrs. Spotswood; I'm awfully glad to see you again.'

Now she could rise with full propriety, and did so, taking his hand cordially. 'Well, well, Broadway; it doesn't seem possible that it's you.' Smiling in an unfeigned joy at seeing him, she took him by the shoulders and slowly turned him around for inspection.

'Yes, I guess I've ch[illegible] he laughed. 'Nobody seemed [illegible] me in the streets, and I saw only one face that I recognized.' He brought Bob up. 'This is Mr. Wallace, Mrs. Spotswood.'

She shook his friend's hand heartily. 'I want you to feel right at home. I guess Broadway knows that all his friends are our friends.'

Wallace really was delighted by the whole atmosphere of simple welcome; and those eyes of Clara Spotswood's—he wondered if, when Broadway took the full charge of the gum works and came here to live, there would not be some reason for a branch office of the Empire Advertising agency in Jonesville.

The judge called their attention to a portrait of the dead gum magnate. 'It was made ten years ago,' he said, in explanation.

'But he didn't change much in his last ten years,' said Mrs. Spotswood.

'No; you bet he didn't,' Broadway acknowledged bitterly.

'Is Dave in the kitchen, mom?' the judge inquired, as Mrs. Spotswood started for the lemonade.

'Yes.'

He went to her confidentially, handing her a coin, as soon as he was sure that Broadway and his friend were lost in contemplation of the portrait. 'Give him this quarter then,' he whispered, 'and tell him to go over to the drug store and get six good cigars for me.'

Though this was mad extravagance, she countenanced it upon this great occasion. 'I'll tell him right away,' she promised, and the judge smiled at her. She always rose to great occasions.

'Didn't remember Clara, did you, when she went to the door?' he genially inquired of Broadway.

Three-Day Remnant Sale

Thursday, Friday, Saturday. Safe Goods Price-Reduced Emphatically

Do You Know That It's an Old Trick of Some Stores to inflate the merits of their merchandise, inflate the so-called original prices, draw a line through them, scribble humble odd figures on the same ticket, then burn up newspaper space with meaningless words to tell about it.

It's allright to make known the original price and the reduction; all wrong, however, to inflate the figures.

This store puts fair prices on the best standard goods with the result that people are becoming experienced in proper prices and trusty qualities, enabling them to test advertising statements—and to prick the balloon of over-valuation.

If there wasn't one good store in your town, what would be your means of gauging prices?

The Remnant lengths and lots are regular Wright-Metzler lines sold down to where it is cheaper for the store—and better for it—to get them out regardless of the money they'll bring in.

Loads of goods to be moved with little prices—the littlest prices that have yet been put on seasonable merchandise.

Little prices for little and big lengths of woolens, silks, laces, ribbons, trimmings, waistings, flannels—every piece usable and worth full value. And little to pay for soiled blankets, comforts, neckwear, decorative linens, towels, art pieces, finished needle work—soiled in handling or dust touched in the stock rooms. Then comes the odds and fews—buttons, notions of various sorts and a multitude of other things that must make way for incoming spring goods.

Woolens
An extra treat in extra lengths of all staple and fancy mixtures, serges to handsomest Scotch tweeds. Lengths for skirts and to whole suits. Values 50c to $3.00.

Silks
Sufficient quantities at remnant prices for entire gowns down to a small piece to trim fancy work. Every kind you ever heard of—and some sorts you have not, included. 50c to $2.00 vales.

Ribbons
Great quantities of accumulated bolt ends that may be used for hair ornament, trimming or fancy work. Plain sorts to double faced kinds 10c to $1 yard regular.

Trimmings
Yards of colored bands, crystal, gold bead work, ball and fringe kinds. White and dainty tones. Remnant prices on all from the 10c sort to the exclusive kinds at $5 a yard.

Ornaments
of gold, silver, crystal in color, silk and every other fashionable material. Such kinds at remnant prices as will be the vogue this coming season.

Embroideries
embracing corset cover, all-over, edges, insertions, galoons and bands. Lengths to trim lingerie and children's underclothes, baby dresses, etc.

Laces
Heretofore priced 5c to $2.00 yard. German and French Val, Venise, Cluny, torchon, short pieces in all widths, each useful and at a reduction.

White Goods
Useful now and more so later. Waistings and the whole category of plain weaves, long cloth to Persian lawns.

Mulls
Formerly priced 25c to 50c. The short lengths are at a big saving. Plain white and all the staple colors.

Table Damask
Bolt ends useful for small tables, lunch cloths, etc. Part-cotton to linen, double damask in the accumulation. Originally the prices were 50c to $2 yard.

Decorative Linen
Remnant prices on soiled squares, scarfs, doilies, piano covers, etc. The cost now will be about half.

Ginghams
One group contains all the finer dress ginghams in varying lengths and widths. Apron ginghams of standard makes will be found elsewhere. Lengths for aprons and a multitude of uses.

Calico
Remnants of the best grades in light and dark patterns. Quilting calico and plain fast colors, included. The saving will figure big.

Outing Cloth
and lots of it. Supply yourself for the making of children's slumber garments and underwear. Light and dark colors, all the best grades.

Linings
Percaline, satine, satin, heatherbloom, etc., all colors and black. All lengths in all kinds.

Silkolines
Swisses, Nets, Madras and cretonnes. Everything for decorative uses and the shorter pieces for fancy work bags, etc.

Crashes
from short ends for tea towels to some pieces long enough for roller towels. Small pieces for art work, etc.

Underwear
Women's, children's and infants' cotton, woolen and mixed garments with shortened prices for certain lots. Winter weights only.

Blankets
and comforts. All with prices clipped. Full size cotton, wool-filled and wool blankets and clean cotton filled comforts.

Winter Gloves
Warm fabric gloves for women and children. Some kid gloves with prices on a par with the lower cost.

Royal Society
package goods of fancy work. Threads and all requirements in one package. Selling now at a price discount.

Waist Flannel
Several sorts—plain or with stripes—in waistlength. In colors. Waist lengths at cost—and under the prices they now by sold for.

Novelty Waistings
Short lengths of various cotton, woolen and silk fabrics, all sufficient for making into waists. Remnant prices.

Country Flannels
Short pieces of that always useful, honest, wool finish. Lengths for women's and girls' petticoats, and other uses.

Embroidered Flannels
The finest and daintiest of woolens. Smooth soft, fine, and in lengths for flounces or infants' skirts.

Dress Linens
A few pieces—some white and others colored—invaryin lengths, useful, of course, for a multitude of purposes.

Soiled Needlework
Finished pieces, cushions, doilies, centerpieces, scarfs, etc. Reduced 25% and more.

Plaid Cloakings
These stylish, distinctive double-faced cloakings, plaid on one side, plain on the other. Remnant lengths.

Soiled Underwear
Various union suits and separate pieces for women and children. Substantial savings.

Odd Buttons
picked from our big stock of trimming and utility sorts. Dozens of some kinds—few of another. Remnant prices.
